WARRENSBURG

The hamlet of Warrenburgh was settled shortly after the Revolutionary War and was formally established in 1813.

The Hudson and Schroon rivers generated the power; forests produced the raw materials; the Industrial Revolution provided the momentum, fertile minds yielded the ingenuity for grist mills, tanneries, potash factories, a porcelain factory, a shoe peg factory and thriving lumber businesses to name a few.

Known as the "Gateway to the Adirondacks", Warrenburgh is a year round community situated on the banks of the Schroon and Hudson Rivers. It is a town rich in history, natural resources, beauty and recreational opportunities.
